For the third consecutive year, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts (Blue Cross) has been named an honoree of The Civic 50.

The Civic 50 provides a national standard for corporate citizenship and showcases how companies can use their time, skills, and resources to drive social impact in their communities and company. The Civic 50 honorees are companies with annual U.S. revenues of at least $1 billion and are selected based on four dimensions of their corporate citizenship and social impact programs – investment of resources, integration across business functions, institutionalization through policies and systems and impact measurement.

"Blue Cross is committed to creating more equitable, just and healthy communities," said Jeff Bellows, vice president of corporate citizenship and public affairs. "In the wake of the pandemic and the long overdue reckoning on racial injustice, it was clear we needed to do more to address the social and environmental factors contributing to health inequities. We're proud to invest our resources and talent to partner with local nonprofits to improve opportunities and health outcomes."

In 2021, the company invested $41.7 million dollars in financial, volunteer, and in-kind support to Massachusetts-based not-for-profits, including \$25 million to champion physician practices and hospitals in their equity improvement efforts and $1.3 million to support community-based COVID-19 vaccine efforts. 76% of employees participate in company volunteer programs, contributing nearly 30,000 hours of service to support the health of Massachusetts communities.

"Corporate leadership and commitment to civic engagement is critical for strengthening communities," said Natalye Paquin, president & CEO of Points of Light.
