

MPOWER Financing rated Top international student lender by Nerdwallet and U.S. News

The innovative fintech firm uses big data analytics and artificial intelligence to offer scholarships and no-cosigner loans for international students in the U.S. and Canada

WASHINGTON, July 16, 2019 /PRNewswire/ -- MPOWER Financing, a mission-driven fintech that provides financial access to higher education for high-promise international and DACA students, was recognized by both Nerdwallet and U.S. News & World Report as the top student loan provider for international students.

Nerdwallet, a comparison website for personal finance products, awarded MPOWER a 5-star rating for its student loans, indicating that its products are "among the very best for consumer-friendly features." Nerdwallet also commended MPOWER for offering loans that are "ideal for international and DACA students without a co-signer or U.S. credit history." MPOWER's loans are available to students from around the world for both graduate and undergraduate degrees at more than 350 top universities in the U.S. and Canada.

U.S. News & World Report recognized MPOWER Financing as the "best lender for international students." This determination was made on the basis of MPOWER's product offerings, cost, customer servicing ratings, eligibility, and other features. U.S. News also detailed that MPOWER's underwriting process considers a student's academic success and career path - a process that is enabled by MPOWER's use of big data analytics and artificial intelligence.

"I was having a tough time obtaining education loans from India without collateral," wrote Kaushik Krishnan, one of MPOWER's early students. "MPOWER was truly life changing for me. I've since graduated from my Masters program, found a job, and paid off my loan."

"MPOWER allowed me to achieve my dream," said Sol Bee, a South Korean student. "I was admitted to Berkeley in Fall 2016, but I couldn't afford it at the time. MPOWER empowered me to be who I wanted to be by allowing me to take control of my finances and my life."

"We're honored by the industry recognition we've received, and the hundreds of heartfelt stories we get from students whom we have the privilege to serve," says Manu Smadja, Co-founder and CEO of MPOWER. "We're working hard to further improve our customer experience and to remain the best international student lending product on the market."
