

West Virginia Public Service Commission Authorizes New Rates for West Virginia American Water

Supports over $239 Million in Continued Infrastructure Investments Across the State; Additional Customer Discount Program Also Introduced

CHARLESTON, W.Va., March 10, 2026 /PRNewswire/ -- The West Virginia Public Service Commission issued an amended order on Thursday, March 5, 2026, approving new rates for West Virginia American Water. The approved rates represent a total annualized revenue increase of $20.5 million, which excludes $12.7 million in previously recovered infrastructure surcharges.

The company's rate request was filed in May 2025 and supports over $239 million in investments and improvements in the system across the state since the company's last rate adjustment in 2024.

"Continuing infrastructure investments across our service territory are vital for sustaining safe, clean, reliable, and affordable water and wastewater services for the communities we serve, as well as maintaining compliance with water quality and environmental regulations," said Scott Wyman, President of West Virginia American Water. "We strive to maintain a balance between continuous investment for needed system improvements and affordability for our customers, and this order allows us to continue to make necessary improvements for the longevity of the system."

Effective March 1, 2026, residential water customers using 3,000 gallons per month will see their average bill increase by approximately $6 per month, and residential wastewater customers will see their average bill increase by approximately $7 per month.

The Public Service Commission also introduced an additional customer discount program available to customers enrolled in the Special Reduced Rate Residential Service (SRRRS) tariff. Customers on the SRRRS tariff will receive an additional 20% discount on the SRRRS tariff rate.
