

Cision Acquires Bulletin Intelligence to Expand Decision-Making Support for Senior Leaders

Industry-leading analysis combines with cloud-based tech to offer daily intelligence briefs

March 28, 2017 — Cision announced today that it acquired Bulletin Intelligence, which has written the daily White House News Summary for the Executive Office of the President since 2001, and which also provides custom, expert-curated executive briefings to the CEOs and C-suites of many of the nation's largest businesses.

The acquisition closely follows Cision's announcement to go public via a business combination with Capitol Acquisition Corp. III (NASDAQ: CLAC) and expands the company's ability to deliver actionable intelligence to senior leadership teams.

Bulletin Intelligence's expert analysts deliver highly-customized must-read briefings to closed audiences first thing each business morning, providing a comprehensive view of news and other competitive intelligence to highest-level corporate and government leaders. Bulletin's accompanying predictive media analytics captures and measures the sentiment from news and social media channels, helping brands and executives understand the opinions of customers, investors, and regulators across the world.

Bulletin Intelligence's elite analysis capabilities, best-in-class talent and deep relationships with world and business leaders will strengthen Cision's current global team of analysts.

Cision also adds Bulletin Healthcare and Bulletin Media branded services to its product portfolio. Bulletin Healthcare digitally delivers medical specialty news briefings each morning to over one million healthcare professionals, including 800,000 physicians. Bulletin Media delivers daily news customized to the professional interests of over 500,000 engineers, educators and manufacturers.

"After our recent announcement to go public, acquiring Bulletin Intelligence is a natural next step toward building the world's most complete earned media cloud platform," explained Cision CEO Kevin Akeroyd. "In an era of excess information and the 24/7 news cycle, the addition of Bulletin's world-class analyst services bolsters our ability to provide data-driven insights that today's executives need to make critical business decisions."

Paul Roellig, founding CEO of Bulletin Intelligence said, "Cision is a natural home for Bulletin Intelligence, Bulletin Healthcare and Bulletin Media. The services will complement the Cision platform, and we have been impressed with Cision's new leadership team, its strategic vision and their sincere desire to invest in the business to the benefit of our clients and employees."

Today's strategic acquisition aligns with Cision's overall commitment to equipping companies and brands with the ability to build consistent, meaningful and enduring relationships and results. By combining the power of the Cision Communications Cloud™ with the acumen and analysis of industry professionals, Cision and Bulletin Intelligence will continue to deliver trusted data-driven resources in real-time to senior leaders and communications professionals.

Day-to-day operations at Bulletin Intelligence and Cision will not be affected. Bulletin Intelligence's customer service, platform and network of deeply experienced analysts will continue to operate as normal.

Portico Capital Securities LLC served as exclusive financial advisor to Bulletin Intelligence with respect to this transaction. Terms of the transaction were not released.

No Offer or Solicitation

This communication shall neither constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to buy any securities, nor shall there be any sale of securities in any jurisdiction in which the offer, solicitation or sale would be unlawful prior to the registration or qualification under the securities laws of any such jurisdiction.

Forward Looking Statements

This communication includes "forward looking statements" within the meaning of the "safe harbor" provisions of the United States Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. When used in this communication, the words "estimates," "projected," "expects," "anticipates," "forecasts," "plans," "intends," "believes," "seeks," "may," "will," "should," "future," "propose" and variations of these words or similar expressions (or the negative versions of such words or expressions) are intended to identify forward-looking statements. These forward-looking statements are not guarantees of future performance, conditions or results, and involve a number of known and unknown risks, uncertainties, assumptions and other important factors, many of which are outside Capitol's or Cision's management's control, that could cause actual results or outcomes to differ materially from those discussed in the forward-looking statements. Important factors, among others, that may affect actual results or outcomes include: the inability to complete the transactions contemplated by the proposed business combination; the inability to recognize the anticipated benefits of the proposed business combination, which may be affected by, among other things, the amount of cash available following any redemptions by Capitol stockholders; the ability to meet NASDAQ's listing standards following the consummation of the transactions contemplated by the proposed business combination; costs related to the proposed business combination; Cision's ability to execute on its plans to develop and market new products and the timing of these development programs; Cision's estimates of the size of the markets for its solutions; the rate and degree of market acceptance of Cision's solutions; the success of other competing technologies that may become available; Cision's ability to identify and integrate acquisitions; the performance and security of Cision's services; potential litigation involving Capitol or Cision; and general economic and market conditions impacting demand for Cision's services. Other factors include the possibility that the proposed transaction does not close, including due to the failure to receive required security holder approvals, or the failure of other closing conditions. Neither Capitol nor Cision undertake any obligation to update or revise any forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise, except as required by law.
