

People and Pets, Purina and Jenny Craig Pair Up for Weight Loss

ST. LOUIS (May 13, 2013) — Veterinary patients and clients can benefit from a new program that helps people and their pets exercise and lose weight together. Purina® and fellow Nestlé company Jenny Craig are joining forces with a special program called the Power of Two, which combines the proven success of the Jenny Craig program and Project: Pet Slim Down® from Purina.

In working together, weight-loss experts from Jenny Craig and Purina have learned that approaches effective in helping people lose weight can also help overweight pets. “Strategies such as meal planning and one-on-one support can help jump-start new habits,” said Jessica Collins, Area Market Director and consultant for Jenny Craig. “Pets also make great weight-loss partners by motivating their owners to get moving.”

While enrollment at PowerofTwoProgram.com can save significant dollars for pets and people through exclusive offers, experts from Purina and Jenny Craig maintain that the greatest benefit for pets and their owners is the personalized counsel offered through trained veterinary professionals and Jenny Craig consultants.

“One of the greatest challenges with weight management is making the right decisions about eating and exercise,” says Purina® Certified Weight Coach Heather Prendergast. “Owners of overweight pets need specific veterinary advice. They need to know what food to feed, how much to feed and how often to feed it.”

Prendergast has coached a number of clients and patients through the Project: Pet Slim Down program in her Las Cruces, NM practice. She notes that the support of a weight-loss buddy can be invaluable to an owner who also wants to lose weight, while exercising with pets can actually help boost both duration and intensity level. According to researchers in Canada, dog owners walk nearly twice as much as people without dogs,¹ and a University of Missouri study determined that walking speed increases 28 percent with a dog.²

Details on the program and tips from Purina® and Jenny Craig experts are available at PowerofTwoProgram.com. Among the special offers with sign-up is a choice of a free program from Jenny Craig, for up to 90 days (plus the cost of food and shipping if applicable), and a $15 veterinary visit rebate with the purchase of Purina Veterinary Diets® OM Overweight Management® Canine or Feline Formula.
