

Dec. 4 is the last chance to purchase an Epic Pass or Epic Day Pass for the 2022/23 Ski & Ride Season

- Lift tickets will be limited every day at every resort this winter to prioritize Pass Holder experience
- Vail, Beaver Creek, Breckenridge, Keystone, Heavenly, Northstar, Kirkwood, Park City, and more, open with great early season conditions

BROOMFIELD, Colo. – Nov. 21, 2022 – Snow is falling, resorts are opening, and if you're planning to ski or ride this season, you have less than two weeks to lock in your Epic Pass or Epic Day Pass Epic Passes – including the Epic Day Pass (1-7 days) which provides up to 65% savings compared to lift ticket prices – go off sale at 11:59 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 4.

"If you know you'll ski and ride this season, even just a few days, don't wait to buy lift tickets," said Ryan Bennett, Chief Marketing Officer of Vail Resorts. "We have a variety of pass options so everyone can benefit from the value and flexibility that our passes offer. Whether you'll hit the slopes one day or every day, by purchasing now you'll avoid paying for full priced lift tickets later."

Vail Resorts will limit lift tickets every day, across each of its North American resorts, throughout the 2022/23 winter season to prioritize the on-mountain experience for its Pass Holders. Some resorts already have sold out dates where lift tickets are no longer available to purchase online or at ticket windows. Passes, including Epic Day Passes, will not be restricted beyond any holiday dates associated with the purchased pass type. Last season, Vail Resorts limited lift tickets across three popular holiday periods.

2022/23 SEASON KICKOFF

Fourteen of the company's resorts have already opened for the season with the right combination of snow, cold temperatures, snowmaking, and hard work by the company's passionate team members.

Six resorts opened earlier than originally scheduled, including Beaver Creek just this morning with 200 acres of terrain, as well as Breckenridge, Heavenly, Park City (which had its earliest opening since 1996), Northstar and Kirkwood (both celebrating their 50th anniversaries this year – and Kirkwood opening 20 days early). Keystone kicked off the season for Vail Resorts on Oct. 28, and Vail celebrated the start of its 60th season on Veteran's Day – a fitting tribute to the resort's legacy and connection to the 10th Mountain Division. Also open: Stowe, Mount Snow, Okemo and Hunter in the Northeast, Afton Alps in the Midwest, and the company's newest resort, and first in Europe, Andermatt-Sedrun in Switzerland. More resorts are scheduled to open this week, including Whistler Blackcomb in British Columbia, Canada.

Significant investments in the on-mountain experience debut this season, including new lifts across a dozen resorts. Nine new high-speed chairlifts, a new high-speed gondola and eight new fixed-grip chairlifts will help guests move up and around the mountain more easily. Skiers and riders can also look forward to an upgraded restaurant in Keystone, the return of a beloved Northstar tradition – Tóst, and new Ice Bars and Snow Bungalows at Vail.

"We care deeply about our guests' experience at our resorts," said Bennett. "As always, weekends, holidays and powder days will still be popular, but we are proud of the big investments we have made toward improving the on-mountain experience."

In addition to new lifts and technology to help guests maximize their day, Vail Resorts made significant investments to positively impact its employees who bring the guest experience to life on-mountain every day. Investments include higher employee pay, new affordable employee housing, and leadership development, plus other employee health benefits and perks.
