

Visit the home of those weird Swedish IKEA product names for free

How's your Swedish? Bolmen, Järvfjället, Skärhamn, Kallax and Toftan. For years now the world has marvelled at and struggled to pronounce, IKEA product names*. What most don't realise is that the global furniture giant often names its wares after real places in Sweden. Now, practice your Swedish by uploading your attempts at pronouncing the names of these fantastic locations for a chance to win and visit Sweden.

Dream of travelling to Sweden to experience a wolf safari, spending the night in wolf territory in the forests of Västmanland? Always wanted to enjoy the expansive views experienced from the saddle as you ride a mountain bike in the Swedish mountains. Maybe soaring over the treetops of Småland in a four-kilometre Zipline is closer to heart? Or is culture your thing, visiting art museums and living like an artist on Sweden's scenic West Coast? Here's the opportunity! All that's needed to win a dream trip is to pronounce a few Swedish words - to the best of your ability!

Through Visit Sweden's "Discover the Originals", millions of people around the world learned that IKEA's toilet brush, Bolmen borrowed its name from an idyllic lake in Småland. Laxviken, Norberg and Skärhamn some of Sweden's pretty destinations, are also places that the furniture giant has borrowed names from for its products. In Visit Sweden's new competition Visit the home of the Originals, four lucky winners and a friend, from the United Kingdom, Germany or Holland, get the chance to travel to Lofsdalen in the north, Småland in the south, West Sweden in the west or Västmanland in central Sweden. Here are just a few of the things they will get to experience:

Action and adventure in Jämtland and Härjedalen

Spend unforgettable days in the spectacular mountain landscape of Lofsdalen valley. Enjoy the wild countryside while downhill cycling, hiking, trout fishing, paddling a canoe and swimming. Then, sit back, relax and marvel at the views through the window while enjoying the classic taste of cloudberry jam and other local specialities?

More about – Visit Sweden: Discover the originals

In November of 2021, local politicians, residents, and media gathered by lake Bolmen for the presentation of the lake's new slogan: Welcome to Bolmen, more than an IKEA toilet brush. In social media, even more beautiful pictures and catchy slogans were offered. Everything pointed towards the Visit Sweden homepage where a guide to 21 lovely places was detailed. Just hours after going live the campaign was covered by Sweden's biggest news stations – and then it went global! Many of the world's biggest publishers within news, travel, and design wrote about the campaign. Some stations received special PR kits with humorous Bolmen merchandise.

Through the campaign, people got to know the truth about IKEA's mythical product names and the Swedish locations got the attention they deserve.

The results exceeded all expectations, generating more than 700 articles and 300 blog posts in 49 countries.

Sweden officially reclaimed its names.

The campaign was recognised with a Gold and Silver Lion for Creative Strategy at the Cannes Lions International Festival of Creativity 2022.

The 21 Places Originally Reclaimed by Sweden:

Five Facts about Sweden:

- Peaking at 2,097 metres (6,880 feet), Kebnekaise is the highest mountain in Sweden.
- Facebook has placed its European servers in Luleå, partly because of the climate that helps cool the servers and the rich access to renewable energy from hydropower, or water power.
- The High Coast Bridge is 1,867 metres long, which made it the world's 9th longest suspension bridge when it opened in 1997.
- Many Swedish homes are painted in a colour known as Falu red. The pigment is a byproduct of copper mining in Falun.
- Sweden covers an area of 407,000 km<sup>2</sup> (157,000 mi<sup>2</sup>) and is the fifth largest country in Europe.
